Scholarship: My lifelong passion for advancing engaged interdisciplinary and integrated scholarship and teaching has led me to concentrate on contributing to the burgeoning literature on intersectionality, racial formation, critical race theory, and inequalities in education and health. I focus on diverse Latina/o/x and African communities. My book, Hopeful Girls, Troubled Boys: Race and Gender Disparity in Urban Education (2003) focuses on second-generation Dominicans, West Indians, and Haitians, to explain why girls of color are succeeding at higher rates than their male counterparts. I co-edited, Mapping "Race": Critical Approaches to Health Disparities Research (Rutgers, 2013), a multidisciplinary volume that was the byproduct of R21 National Institutes of Health (NIH)-funded workshop that grappled with ontologies of race. I also co-edited, QuantCrit: An Antiracist Approach to Education Inquiry, which invites quantitative antiracist inquiry to engage in an ontological reckoning that considers historical, social, political and economic power relations (Routledge 2023). I have also received grants from WT Grant Foundation, The Hewlett Foundation, National Science Foundation, The Sociological Initiatives Foundation, The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, The Center for Regional Studies, and the Research Allocation Committee, UNM. I co-founded (2009) and direct the Institute for the Study of "Race" and Social Justice, UNM (race.unm.edu). Under my leadership we established the race and social justice graduate certificate (2016) and in 2014 I launched the NM Race, Gender, Data Policy Consortium (intersectional community of practice). As a public sociologist, I seek to create bridges of conversations between academic, practitioner and lay audiences (William Foote Whyte Distinguished Career Award for Sociological Practice and Public Sociology). I am actively engaged in national discussions on racial and ethnic measurements for the 2020 Census and Office of Management and Budget (OMB) guidelines and I co-founded the Albuquerque Public School Ethnic Studies Education Health Research Practice Partnership for the optimal implementation of ethnic studies. I also co-curating a 2019 bilingual art exhibit in a historic neighborhood in Albuquerque on the 2020 Census and "street race," as well the urgency of an accurate count (See my 2018 TEDx Talk in español at race.unm.edu).

Teaching: Prior to my appointment at UNM, most of my experience has been with a student population that resembles that of UNM, namely diverse urban public university students in New York City and Boston who, like me, grew up in low-income families and are among the first in our families to have an opportunity to graduate high school and pursue higher education. I was born and raised in New York City public housing projects in the Lower East Side of Manhattan. I graduated from a de facto segregated vocational high school. I am Black Latina/AfroLatina, the daughter of Dominican immigrants. Spanish is my first language. I have taught bilingual sociology courses. Student-centeredness and engagement have always been at the core of my pedagogical endeavors. I aim to foster a dynamic classroom atmosphere that invites students to question the world around them, while providing them with the sociological tools to investigate their unique interests in a systemic fashion. I regularly teach undergraduate courses on difference, power, privilege, discrimination, inequality and social justice with a focus on the social construction of race, class, gender, sexual identity and disability. At the graduate level, I teach the core course for comprehensive doctoral exams in race and ethnicity, as well as race and education. I created a new course on Intersectionality, Race, Gender, Class and Social Policy. I have chaired/served on over 80 masters degree/doctoral degree committees. I have also served on 75 masters/doctoral comprehensive exams. I was awarded several awards for my teaching, including the inaugural Outstanding Faculty of Color - Research, Teaching, Service and Mentoring Award, Gunter Starkey Teaching Award and the UNM Alumni Faculty Teaching Award.

Service: My service contributions intentionally create synergies with my engaged scholarship and teaching at UNM and at the national level. I have served as Secretary-Treasurer of the American Sociological Association (ASA) and chair of the ASA Section on Race, Gender and Class (intersectionality) and the ASA Nominations Committee. I was appointed Chair of the ASA Committee on the Status of Racial and Ethnic Minorities. I was elected Vice President of the Sociologists for Women in Society. At UNM I have served on 55 service committees, where I have led enduring institutional-level transformations (in 2014 established the U.S. & Global Diversity, Equity, Inclusion and Power [DEIP] undergraduate graduation requirement). I was awarded the Inaugural Leadership Academy Faculty Fellowship and the Luminaria Presidential Award, Division of Equity and Inclusion. I have served as the inaugural co-chair of the Diversity Council, which created and instituted a preferred criteria on equity and inclusion for all UNM faculty and staff jobs. I have been elected to the faculty senate operations committee and the Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee. I have also served on the Curricula Committee and Academic Council of the Faculty Senate. I have chaired the Equity Committee, UNM Graduation Taskforce and I have served on the Faculty Grievance Taskforce; Community Engagement Taskforce; Leadership Team & Recruitment Committee of the RWJF Center for Health Policy; Research Service-Learning Program (RSLP); The Southwest Hispanic Research Institute (SHRI), Black Faculty Alliance and co-founded the Latinx Faculty Alliance. In Sociology I have served as the Graduate Chair (pre-tenure), Undergraduate Chair, as well as on the executive committee, teaching enhancement committee, chair of the diversity taskforce. I have chaired/served on faculty search committees.

Public Sociology as Engaged Scholarship

It is my hope that my contributions to public sociology and engaged scholarship regarding racial and ethnic data collection for 2020 Census and Office of Management and Budget (OMB) race and ethnicity guidelines for federal and government agencies, has promoted dialogue about issues that affect the fate of communities impacted by structural racism. In January 2018, the Census announced that they decided to keep the two-question format for 2020 Census for Latinos/as/x. This was a surprise as the Census had conducted two tests and concluded that combining Hispanic Origin and race was optimal for reducing the number of Hispanic that write in “Some Other Race” and claimed that AfroLatino numbers didn’t not decline even though this was a mail-in experiment. I have presented at many forums with the Census and other stakeholders pointing to the preponderance of interdisciplinary evidence on the color line and social inequalities within Latinx Communities. It is clear that Latinx people are not a monolithic and despite good intentions, Hispanic origin and Race are not interchangeable conceptually and they need to be asked in separate questions. It is my hope that engagement with the OMB, Census, Federal Registry in multiple forums I organized and I participated in made an impact because it provided empirical evidence on the preponderance of interdisciplinary research on the color line and social inequalities in the Latinx community. Quoted by Hansi Lo Wang, National Public Radio (NPR) Reporter, 4/26/18, Tweet from my Comments at the Population Association of America Panel on the 2020 Census.

INNOVATIVE SCHOLARLY INITIATIVES AND ACADEMIC LEADERSHIP

Institute for the Study of “Race” and Social Justice (established Jan. 2009)

Director and Co-founder, advance engaged racial justice scholarship by cultivating communities of practice for advancing interdisciplinary race and social justice praxis, all-volunteer effort, no operating funds, staff, course release, Special Administrative Component (SAC), research funds, office/meeting space, student intern, staff or travel funds; volunteer driven; ad hoc funding and in-kind support from other centers, such as the RWJF Center for Health Policy.

Mission: promote the establishment of empirical, theoretical and methodological clarity about “race” that draws on cutting-edge thinking from multiple disciplines and diverse empirical traditions promote clarity about race; develop transdisciplinary strategies for ameliorating race-based inequality.

The Institute (race.unm.edu) is an innovative hybrid research institute and interdisciplinary certificate program that offers two interdisciplinary certificates for enrolled and non-matriculated students. This interdisciplinary certificate program has been highly successful. Sixty-six students have enrolled in the graduate and undergraduate certificate since 2016 (graduate) and 2020 (undergrad established). It is important to note that we are the first university in the country to offer this interdisciplinary opportunity to students across departments, colleges, units. I receive frequent inquiries about the certificate program from student in the U.S. and abroad as it meets the demand to learn about race and social justice from an interdisciplinary perspective. Sample activities are below.

- 2009 Faculty Study Group (20 Participants)
- 2009-2010 Lecture Series: Troubling Race: Cutting Edge Approaches Across the Disciplines (four lectures; 70-100 Participants/lecture)
- 2010 Transdisciplinary Race Working Group,
- 2010 Transdisciplinary Guidelines for Researching “Race”, <https://race.unm.edu/about/race-research.html>
- 2011 Counting Race: Racial and Ethnic Measurements for the 2020 Census (150 Participants)
- 2010 National Institutes of Health (NIH R21) Mapping Race: Promising Practices in Health Disparities Research
- 2013 Mapping Race: Critical Approaches to Health Disparities Research published by Rutgers University Press; Reviewed in American Journal of Sociology, described as “masterful” and “necessary reading”
- 2013, 2014, 2015 Invited to Affiliate of Race, Ethnicity and Poverty (REAP) Center Conference, Conference Planning Committee, Office of the Dean of the School of Social Work, Center on Race and Social Problems, University of Pittsburgh
- 2016 Signatory on Letter of Major Scholarly Association Opposing S. 103 Prohibiting Race Data Collection for Fair Housing Enforcement
- Spring 2016 Lecture #Fight Racism Teaching for Social Justice
- Spring 2016-Fall 2016 Race and Social Justice; Race and Pedagogy working Groups; co-produced syllabi on interdisciplinary insights on race and social justice as well as race and pedagogy interdisciplinary approaches (both classes and unique RACE subject code for interdisciplinary courses created by over twenty Institute affiliated faculty rejected by Curriculum Committee, College of Arts and Sciences, pending the availability of funding)
- 2016 Albuquerque Public Schools and University of New Mexico (APS-UNM) Partnership for Ethnic Studies Education and Health Established
- 2017 Ethnic Studies Community of Practice, within the National Network of Education Research Practice Partnerships (NNERPP) established
- 2017 Briefing Scheduled to Congressional Civil Rights and Hispanic Caucus on the 2020 Census Racial and Ethnic Measurements;

- 2017 Teacher Empowerment Institute, APS-UNM Ethnic Studies Education and Health Research Practice Partnership, August; Teacher Workshops Spring 2018
- 2016 Instituted Race and Social Justice Interdisciplinary Graduate Certificate; approval to open the certificate to anyone with a BA or higher in 2018; 27 admitted & 7 graduates in three years.
- 2020 Census data and Civil Rights Use Spring
- 2018-2023 Strategic Plan: Journal Race and Social Justice: Interdisciplinary Insights; Resubmit proposal for undergrad certificate and co-produced course syllabi on race and social justice/pedagogy and effort to resubmit a unique course code for all Institute affiliated courses (RACE- Subject code, signifying the interdisciplinary nature of the course).
- 2022 Convening on Employing Intersectionality for OMB Revising Race and Ethnic Guidelines, RWJF Funding
- 2022 Hispanic Serving Institutions (HSIs) and Intersectionality: Establishment of a Community of Practice Across Institutions, conference series 2022-2023 funded by National Science Foundation

New Mexico Race, Gender, Class Data Policy Consortium (The Consortium is an initiative of the Institute; the Consortium was established July 2014)

Mission: harmonize data for better serving diverse communities through intersectional knowledge projects or the importance of examining the simultaneity race, gender, class and other social locations within systems of inequality for equity-based policy making and practice (see activities under engaged scholarship and public sociology section below).

- UNM Collects Parental Educational Attainment for all undergraduate students, Fall 2015

COURSE SYLLABI DEVELOPED FALL 2015-SPRING 2016 (Supported via UNM Teaching Enhancement Committee)

RACE 400/500	Race and Social Justice: Interdisciplinary Insights
RACE 404/505	Race and Social Justice: Pedagogy and Praxis Across the Disciplines

*Note: The development of these co-created courses entailed meetings with funds from the UNM Teaching Enhancement Committee. These Form Bs and the Form C proposal for a race and social justice undergraduate interdisciplinary certificate was rejected by the Curriculum Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences (Fall 2016, resubmitted Fall 2018; approved by faculty senate vote and Regents vote in Fall 2019; will be available as of Fall 2020 catalog; again, first in the nation). Administrators explained that there was no funding available for an advisor and for the creation of the proposed new course code (RACE). We applied for funding from the Innovation Academy (not funded). We are currently exploring the option of offering as cross-listed courses via a memorandum of understanding with the home departments of Institute affiliated faculty. These innovative interdisciplinary courses have not yet been offered/taught. Working syllabi are continually updated and available at race.unm.edu
